

Colorado Foreclosure Hotline Info

KEYS TO KEEPING YOUR HOME

Don't Wait to Take Action

The first key to keeping your home is don't wait to take action! The longer you wait to take action and get informed about foreclosure, the fewer choices you have. If you seek help before you are past due you have a much greater chance of a positive solution to the problem.

Nearly all foreclosures are the result of delayed action. The fact that you are reading this information is a sign that you need to call the hotline immediately, if only to get basic questions answered.

Your lender does not want to take possession of your home and will work with you and the hotline's trained housing specialist to help you avoid foreclosure. You must act now.

Know Your Options

The second key to keeping your home is knowing your options. When you call the hotline, a trained housing counselor will work with you and your lender, confidentially, to help you evaluate your financial situation. You will receive free advice on your options to help you keep your home and get out of debt.

Do not deny you have a problem by losing hope and giving up. Ask for help! And when you do, fear, shame and embarrassment will take a back seat, and you will gain the strength to deal with the challenges in front of you.

You will be surprised at the number of options you have. Our goal is to provide solutions and to restore your HOPE.

Our Advice is Free

The third key to keeping your house is finding a source that is committed to helping you. The Colorado Foreclosure Hotline is your source and our advice is free!

As a non-profit organization, we have already helped thousands of callers from Colorado who were looking for advice, just like you. There are many options that can help you keep your house and stop the foreclosure process. We will explain everything and make sure you

